Happy Valentine's Day

Share your love of Mah Jongg!

To celebrate Valentine's Day, here are some ideas for sharing your love of playing Mah Jongg with friends, family and acquaintances.

• Bring some chocolate candy to share at your Mah Jongg game. There is no better treat than milk or dark chocolate. It tastes delicious and it contains some caffeine to stimulate the brain, so everyone can concentrate on their Mah Jongg hand. Plus, numerous studies have shown that chocolate, especially dark chocolate, has a lot of health benefits. So dig in, savor the sweetness of chocolate and enjoy it with your Mah Jongg playing companions.

- Reach out and invite a new person to your Mah Jongg game. If that person can't make the time your group plays Mah Jongg, then suggest they look for Mah Jongg games on our website, www.mahjonggmentor.com. Just take the initiative and you will feel great about making an effort to include someone in your passion for Mah Jongg.
- If you bet in your Mah Jongg game, donate all the winnings to a charity. Keep a jar and put your Mah Jongg winnings in it along with some of your loose change. After a year, you will have enough cash to make a nice donation to your favorite charity and you will feel wonderful about making a difference in the world.

Happy Valentine's Day!

CLASSROOM CORNER by Leah Feigenbaum

As requested by a MahJonggMentor member, we are discussing the benefits of declaring a person's hand dead. You'll have to watch the videos to view the mechanics of declaring hands dead but here you have the skinny on why it's beneficial.
